

ARTinEd - A new approach to education using the arts

'ARTinEd - A new approach to education using the arts', <http://www.artined.eu/index.html> is a significant European Union funded education project that is designing innovative methodologies to add creativity in to schools through the arts, as a key component of every school subject. Join our group on Facebook for regular news <http://tinyurl.com/bq839ta>

The arts play a fundamental role to support a student's creative abilities, self-expression and learning abilities. They are a necessary tool especially when not thought as separate subjects but integrated throughout the curriculum. For example, sculpture in mathematics, drawing in history, music in languages etc.

ArtinEd will create:

- A methodology
- In-service training course for teachers and authority curriculum experts to enhance European teachers' knowledge and confidence in using the arts in their daily teaching in any school subject.

The methodology will be based on piloting a practical example in primary schools across Europe. This will focus on how to teach environmental education..

An example set of activities will be prepared and then piloted by primary school students. They will create art (drawings, paintings, dance, writing, poetry, drama, sculpture, music and singing) in response to lessons on the environment.

For more information on the ArtinEd project please contact:

Joel Josephson (dissemination partner)
joel.josephson@joel-josephson.org

The project 'ArtinEd - A new approach to education using the arts ' has been funded with support from the European Commission. This document reflects the views only of the author, and the Commission cannot be held responsible for any use which may be made of the information contained therein.